

TO: The U. S. A. Senators and Congress.

First I picked up a small pamphlet of church literature that I thought didn't look good on the church lot.

And the first story I read gave me thoughts of myself. The story said we all find fault with our government but do nothing about it. So until we let them know our view, we are as guilty as they.

So as I see it when two people see and say the same thing, one is wrong and perhaps both. You can say my side or your side and there is always the right side.

I have always considered it my duty to vote and missed my first the last primary. I have traveled more than five hundred miles to cast my vote. So you say why not vote an absentee ballot?

Years back I took an active part in politics and I for one know how rotten it was then.

Not bragging I never lost but one vote in a primary election and I was not working my home precinct. This was a friend of mine and close neighbor whom I thought gave me a rotten deal. So I chose to go to a precinct where he expected every vote.

While living in Wood County I don't remember of a sixty percent turnout for an election. I have talked with many saying it was their duty to vote. They all agreed but said what's the use they are all crooks and liars. So there was nothing more to say.

It was quite different in Calhoun County where I formerly lived for they had a factual fight that no one could afford to miss and they were sure of what they called being paid for their day, which was much more than they earned any other day until the next election.

As I said before I knew how rotten the Democratic party was. I was one of them and perhaps the worst of the pack.

So you may understand why I was for a young Republican who was a friend. His opponent was also a friend who had held the office for a number of years.
