

mind, and shot the police. But only for being stopped and questioned.

To me there are others guilty. How can a man approach a prisoner surrounded by armed guards and shoot him down so he can not tell what he knows.

As I read it, no one but the F.B.I. was to make the investigation. I believe them to be honest men but they, as I understand it work under the orders of the President.

A friend of mine a few days back said Congress and the Senate made the worst mistake he ever saw, when they had the new quarters minted. I asked why? and he replied, "they should have suggested Johnson's picture to have been minted on the coins saying he was the only two bit President we ever had."

And this makes me think of another joke told on President Truman by an old Democrat friend of mine. President Truman and his daughter were taking a trip by plane. While passing over a small town, he had taken a twenty dollar bill from his billfold and dropped it out the window. A friend sitting near said, "why did you do that President?" He replied, "only to make some poor fool happy." Not long afterwards he repeated the same performance.

The friend said, "making another fool happy?" The President replied, "yes, why not?" The friend then said, "why don't you and your daughter jump out the window and make the world happy."

While my wife was in the West Virginia University Hospital in Morgantown, W. Va., I was sitting in the lobby which was at the time packed with visitors. The Governor of the State came strutting through the lobby with a group of dignitaries following about thirty feet behind. Everyone as expected rose to their feet. I for a stunt and to give the visitors something to talk about and all a good shock so they could forget their sorrow for their friends in the hospital marched right up to the Governor, introduced myself telling him my home town. I then disappeared to the hospital room where my wife was so as to tell it first although it was not visiting hours.

We have been taught to believe we have the best Government in the world and I sometimes still think we may have. But why? We know others think otherwise. For some have tried and failed and I believe most Americans have begun to doubt it to be true.
